We live in a quantum world, where spirit or energy is the only thing that really exists and all possibilities are probabilities. And energy is always in motion. You're born, you live a life, you die. There are all kinds of lifespans. Take technology, for example. Once a cell phone - even though it had to have a briefcase and a big, tall antenna to work - was a radical new invention. But look at today's cell phones. They're tiny and you can call internationally for only a few dollars more a month. Lots of life spans of products passed en route. Change. I wish they didn't charge for baggage at the airport, like they used to. I wish they didn't have the security service that bothers me at the airport. If you're talking like that, it seems you wish it was pre-911. But it isn't. That's change. Embrace it. Look, we're lucky; we're humans. We get approximately a hundred years as a lifespan, give or take. I've heard of organisms with a lifespan of less...

This book is definitely not simple to begin on studying but quite fun to see. I actually have read and that I am sure that I will go on to read through yet again once again in the foreseeable future. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
